7 Busy Days in Jerusalem: 6 for Work, 3 for Weekend

By WILLIAM F. FARELL

JERUSALEM, Dec. 10—Chain-smoking rabbis are in a tizzy. Soldiers parading around in too much jewelry and nail polish have been sternly warned to mend their ways. The censors don't like "The Black Banana." The people who "The Talk" admire "The Black Banana" don't like the censors. A group of ultra-Orthodox Jerusalem Jews who do not recognize the State of Israel or its officials is busy fighting City Hall, which plans a controversial soccer stadium.

These are among Jerusalem's current daytime diversions, items competing with the complex city's business dealings, maniacal traffic, coffee breaks and bureaucratic hazes. After the last fitful play of the light that enhances its beauty has vanished, Jerusalem assumes its nocturnal mood. It is very, very quiet—not as sepulchral as it was some years ago, when a visitor described the then-divided city as smaller than a Brooklyn cemetery and twice as dead, but still very, very quiet.

Perhaps it is because so much energy, some of it due to wheel-spinning, is expended during the day. A city with six-day work weeks and three-day weekends—Friday being the Muslim day of rest, Saturday that for the Jews and Sunday for the Christians—is bound to get confused and tired, even with two-hour naps in the afternoon.

The Sephardic Chief Rabbi of Tel Aviv, David Halevy, sent tremors through some of the Jerusalem rabbinate when he replied recently to a youngster's question about smoking by saying that smoking cigarettes or even offering one to a guest is forbidden by Jewish religious law. As many of the rabbis' chain-smoking sprees wined, he asserted that the Talmud prohibited smoking since cigarettes are known to contain carcinogens.

The ruling was based on Deuteronomy 4:15, which, in the Jewish version, reads: "Take ye therefore good heed unto yourselves." Offering one to a guest? See Leviticus 19:14: "Thou shalt not... put a stumbling block before the blind."

Those in the know say that many rabbis have long felt that smoking contravenes the law but have avoided a pronouncement because smoking is widespread in religious circles. In the Hasidim, a zealous sect, are a good example and because they were fearful that congregants would lack the will to quit.

"Rabbis Tight-Lipped on Smoking," said a follow-up headline in The Jerusalem Post, which elicited a number of "no comments" from members of rabbinical courts. One thing is certain: The last rabbinical opinion on the subject has not been rendered.

Some irate people have been protesting to Col. Dalia Raz, commander of the women's corps of the defense forces, over the sight of Israeli soldiers who sported long red fingernails and were bedecked with pendant earrings, clattering bracelets and other adornment that made their uniforms ununiform.

Colonel Raz has now issued an order, described as rigorous, saying that women soldiers, who are drafted for two years, are allowed one ring and one metal bracelet and can wear only transparent nail polish and light makeup. Earrings are allowed only if they do not dangle and are no larger than the lobe.

Soviet Extends Its Fishing Limit

By DAVID K. SHIPLER

MOSCOW, Dec. 10—The Soviet Union today joined a growing list of countries in extending the offshore fishing limit to 200 nautical miles.

Billed as "temporary measures" pending the conclusion of the United Nations conference on the law of the sea, the new regulations provide for foreign vessels to fish inside the limits only with Soviet permission, and under restrictions as to the volume of catch that is to be permitted.

Moscow has given low-key support in the past to 200-mile limit to help developing countries strengthen their economies. But it criticized both China and the United States for imposing their own restrictions prior to an agreement at the United Nations conference.

Last May, after the American 200-mile limit was put into effect, Tass, the Soviet press agency, called it an "unlawful action" and said the Soviet Government had expressed its "negative view" to Washington.

Today's action seemed partly in retaliation for the damage suffered by the Soviet fishing fleet—the world's largest with

'Radical' Infiltrators' Vex British Laborites

By ROBERT B. SEMPLER Jr.
Special to The New York Times
LONDON, Dec. 10—Prime Minister James Callaghan, his predecessor, Sir Harold Wilson, and the general secretary of the governing Labor Party have joined some of this country's newspapers in warning against a party takeover by "extremist infiltrators," mainly youthful Trotskyists.

News Analysis
that the party is ripe for takeover, if not already in bondage. In fact, the militants are few in number, and only about a dozen seats in Parliament are being seriously challenged.

But what the "infiltrators" as well as their far more illustrious critics have done is to focus attention on an important aspect of present British politics: the antiquated methods by which the British select their candidates for Parliament.

This system, which has nothing in common with the American primaries, vests the power of selection in the "management committee" of a local constituency party. This works well for the Member of Parliament who has friends on the committee; it works badly if the committee is suddenly seized by activists.

Most Viperative Critic
Of all the critics, the most viperative has been Sir Harold, who resigned as Prime Minister early this year. Sir Harold, in a speech Saturday in Yorkshire, denounced what he called "political asset strippers" and the "cynically calculated methods of the takeover bidders."

Mr. Callaghan, who spoke the night before to party workers in Leeds, was more emotional. He told his audience that the most hateful slogans he had heard recently were: "What do we want? Everything! When do we want it? Now!"

"That's not socialism, that's fascism," Mr. Callaghan said. "There are too many people who have infiltrated this party already. Get them out!"

Infiltration to Be Investigated
Meanwhile, the party's left-wing general secretary, Ron Hayward, issued similar warnings, and, as a result, the party's influential national executive committee is expected to reopen an earlier investigation of "extremist" infiltration.

The weekend attack from senior members of the party gave all the appearance of being orchestrated, although Sir Harold had insisted that he did not clear his comments with the Prime Minister's office before delivering them.

The speeches followed a series of articles in The Times of London alleging infiltration of various constituencies. The series included a detailed portrait of left-wing machinery in Bradford, now represented by a moderate Member of Parliament, Edward Lyons.

The true influence of the radical left may be less than the Government fears, or says it fears. The Trotskyists in Britain are notoriously divided, one group coalescing around a 12-page newspaper called The Militant, another around a party-financed paper called Left.

Some experts think there are less than 10,000 of them altogether, although this is in dispute.

What is not in dispute is that they believe in much wider government ownership of the means of production and distribution. They also believe that Labor members who favor a mixed economy, and there are many, have forsaken socialist ideals.

It is also true that their ability to capitalize on the apathy of rank-and-file Labor voters, and thus gain influence on—if not control of—local committees, have confronted several Members of Parliament with the prospect of repudiation at the next general election.

Among these are Neville Sanderson, Frank Tomney, Mr. Lyons, and one member of the Cabinet, Reg Prentice, the Minister for Overseas Aid. A staunch supporter of public spending cuts, Mr. Prentice has been told by his London management committee that he would not be chosen to represent his district the next time around; he is now fighting desperately to "repack" the committee with moderates.

It was the seizure of the key posts in Mr. Prentice's constituency in an East London borough last year that first alerted Labor Party moderates to the possibility that Members of Parliament who had thought their seats to be safe might be in danger.

There will be new elections to these posts next month, but Mr. Prentice is not given much chance of putting enough of his supporters on the management committee.

If he is eventually rejected as the district's candidate, the so-called "fringe" of Britain's Labor Party will receive a boost and the likelihood of further "raids" on moderates will be increased. But it will also create new incentives for reform of the system under which members are selected.

Americans Who Swept 5 Nobels Get $160,000 Prizes

Stockholm, Dec. 10 (AP)—Seven Americans collected all five of this year's prizes from King Carl XVI Gustaf minutes before the two-hour ceremony. The economist, who has visited since the military. Government Pressure Denied

There was Prof. D. Carleton Gajusek of the National Institute for Neurological Diseases, a winner in medicine and a bachelor who fought 16 boys from New Guinea. He brought eight of them along, all with sleeping bags so as not to dent the Nobel Foundation budget.

They are not invariably wrong, but it is not at all a bad idea to remember that you can't confer immortality on you. Immortality—a chilling thought. I feel that I have scarcely begun to master my trade.

Government Pressure Denied
American sweep was so unusual that the Nobel committee, headed by the economist, who has visited since the military. Government Pressure Denied

The seventh laureate, Prof. William N. Lipscomb Jr. of Harvard, was cited for his work in chemistry.

When the committee's choice was announced and the press rushed at me—a terrifying phenomenon—and asked how I felt about winning the Nobel Prize in Literature, I said that the child in me—for despite appearance there is a child within—was delighted, the adult skeptical.

Remarks by Saul Bellow
Following is the text of remarks by Saul Bellow, the Nobel laureate for literature, who spoke at the Nobel banquet after the awards yesterday:

There are not many things on which the world agrees, but everyone I think acknowledges the importance of a Nobel Prize. I myself take most seriously the Nobel Committee's recognition of the highest excellence in several fields, and I accept the honor of this award with profound gratitude.

Aide of Soviet Moldavia,
Once Part of Rumania, Pays Visit to Bucharest

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Dec. 10 (AP)—A Communist leader from neighboring Soviet Moldavia has paid a five-day visit to Rumania less than three weeks after Leonid I. Brezhnev, the Soviet Communist Party leader, was here for talks with President Nicolae Ceausescu. Moldavia, created from the central part of an area known in history as Bessarabia, is a former territory of Rumania and has been an issue between Bucharest and Moscow. The Soviet Moldavian official, Ivan I. Bodyul, who is first secretary of the Communist Party of the republic, ended his visit here on Tuesday. He was repaying a visit to Moldavia last summer by President Ceausescu, who was the first high Rumanian official to visit the Soviet republic since World War II. Moldavia was annexed by the Soviet Union in 1940. Rumania, which has sought to maintain a degree of independence from Moscow, particularly in matters of economic development, trade and diplomatic ties, stressed during the Brezhnev visit that it was opposed to foreign intervention in the internal affairs of other countries. Mr. Brezhnev said he accepted that principle but added that the Soviet Union would remain a guardian of what he termed "proletarian internationalism" in the world Communist movement. Mr. Bodyul, the Soviet Moldavian party leader, was quoted as having said here that the relationship begun by Mr. Ceausescu's visit would "lead to the expansion of contacts and exchanges in all fields."

NEW BEIRUT CHIEF UNIFIES
THE INFORMATION MEDIA

BEIRUT, Lebanon, Dec. 10—The new Lebanese Cabinet, only a day old, went to work immediately today to deal with the country's mounting problems after more than a year and a half of civil war. The new Prime Minister, Dr. Selim al-Hoss, announced his first official action today. He said the Government-controlled information outlets had been unified and that two official radio stations were to merge on Sunday. Dr. Hoss, who is also Minister of Information, made the announcement after a meeting with this ministry's Moslem and Christian officials. During the crisis, two rival radio stations purported to speak for the Lebanese state. The Moslem-controlled station here took a leftist and pro-Palestinian line, while a Christian-dominated station at Amchit, 20 miles north of here, took an opposite stand. The new Cabinet of four Moslems and four Christians was formed by President Elias Sarkis last night. As soon as the formalities were completed the President headed the Cabinet's first meeting and told the ministers of their difficult mission of reconstructing the shattered Lebanese economy and society. He then presented them with a long list of priorities that must get immediate attention. They ranged from funds for the Treasury to reactivate public projects to measures to deal with more than a quarter of a million refugees and displaced persons in the Moslem and Christian areas. Dr. Hoss has not yet addressed himself to the question of the privately owned newspapers and broadcasting stations. Rightist and leftist groups set up rival radio stations during the strife. Some of these radios are still operating.

South-West Africa Talks Stall As Guerrilla War Continues

By JOHN F. BURNS
Special to The New York Times
PRETORIA, South Africa, Dec. 10—While efforts to resolve the Rhodesian dispute grind on inconclusively in Geneva, a less publicized dispute with many of the same elements—a guerrilla war, an entrenched white minority and a faction-ridden black majority—smolders on in the huge, mineral-rich territory of South-West Africa.

The territory, nearly as large as Saudi Arabia and potentially as rich, was set on the path to independence when South Africa, after years of feuding with the United Nations, decided to relinquish its control last year. But there is growing concern that an agreed deadline of Dec. 31, 1978, may not be met.

South Africa's hope is that a pro-Western, multiracial government based on the territory's 11 ethnic groups, including its 90,000 whites, can win sufficient popular support to outflank the militant and well-organized South-West African People's Organization. But the South African plan has bogged down in wrangling at constitutional talks in Windhoek, the territorial capital.

Wednesday, delegates to the talks—known as the Turnhalle Conference, after the gymnasium where they are being held—agreed to adjourn until early next year. The decision was a disappointment to Prime Minister John Vorster of South Africa, who had urged agreement by the end of the year.

Guerrilla Offensive Anticipated
In the meantime, South African forces ranged along the territory's 900-mile frontier with Angola and Zambia are bracing for an intensified offensive in 1977 by People's Organization guerrillas.

Officials here and in Windhoek claim that the guerrillas, with the backing of Angola's Marxist Government, have established new base camps across the border in preparation for the drive. Together, the dispute in Windhoek and the prospect of a widened guerrilla war threaten to undermine South Africa's new diplomatic strategy. The hope by the Vorster Government is that South African cooperation in the establishment of majority governments in Rhodesia and South-West Africa will win Western acquiescence in reforms that stop short of majority rule in South Africa itself.

The South African plan has been further complicated by the election of Jimmy Carter as President here. Carter's Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger won Mr. Vorster's cooperation for the Secretary's recent diplomatic activities in southern Africa with the understanding that the United States would find it easier to resist pressure for harsh action against South Africa. Mr. Carter's pledge of increased pressure for racial reform here has called the understanding into doubt.

Nonetheless, Mr. Vorster apparently considers that South Africa still stands to gain by cutting loose from Rhodesia and South-West Africa. Each has become an increasing burden, both diplomatically and economically. At present, the entire cost of South-West Africa's defense, and about two-thirds of its annual budget, is borne by South Africa.

Blunt Words From Vorster
Late last month, Mr. Vorster, impatient with the progress in Windhoek, summoned a delegation to Pretoria and told its members bluntly that if they did not quickly devise a constitution for a multiracial government he would impose one. As envisaged, the new government would take over by mid-1977 from the white minority that now rules the territory and preside over pre-independence elections the following year.

The formula allows for no role for the People's Organization, except as a possible participant in elections, an omission that the Turnhalle delegates acknowledged to be a serious deficiency. However, the view among the delegates is that if their disunity is not to be exploited by the People's Organization, talks with the group can come only after they have agreed on a constitution.

In principle, Mr. Vorster is opposed to South African participation in the round-table conference proposed by Mr. Kissinger between the Turnhalle delegates and the People's Organization. The South African leader has a strong aversion to the group, regarding it as a Communist front. He takes the view that the territory's future should be decided without direct participation by any outside power, including the United Nations.

In practice, the Prime Minister is flexible, having indicated that he would consider appointing South African observers to roundtable talks. However, he shares with his senior officials profound doubts that the People's Organization would agree to any formula that does not hold out the prospect of undivided power. The group says it is the sole authentic representative of the territory's 900,000 people, a claim accepted by the United Nations and vocally supported by the group's leftist supporters in many nations.

As matters stand, there is a wide gap between the People's Organization's insistence on a unified, nonracial state, and the Turnhalle conference, which is agreed in principle on a federal system, with significant powers reserved to subordinate administrations representing each of the ethnic groups. Under the Turnhalle plan, only the central government would be elected on a territory-wide basis.

Less than one year ago, Saint Laurie, a fine men's clothing manufacturer for 63 years, introduced a unique selling concept in New York.

What started as a gratifying response, has built into an ever growing legion of extraordinarily dressed, true believers.

The concept is simple: Saint Laurie sells their exquisitely tailored classic American and European cut suits to the most expensive stores throughout the country.

They will continue to sell to stores in New York but not under the Saint Laurie label, and offer their vast collection (over 25,000 suits) direct to the consumer.

Nothing like Saint Laurie exists in New York. To our knowledge, anywhere.

The enormous selection, impeccable tailoring, costliest fabrics with the prices at the factory, ranging from $115 to $210, turns the most critical shopper into a delighted customer.

If snatching suits are important to your business or personal life and you've been spending $275 to $300 for them at better stores, come to Saint Laurie and see what feeling and looking good is all about.

British 1697 Law Invoked In a Pornography Case

LONDON, Dec. 10 (UPI)—An anti-pornography campaigner, Mary Whitehouse, has invoked the Blasphemy Act of 1697 to force prosecution of a magazine that published a poem, by a professor teaching in Massachusetts, for alleged blasphemous libel of the life of Jesus.

It is the first such case in 54 years and carries a possible maximum life sentence.

Mrs. Whitehouse, a teacher and now director of the National Viewers and Listeners' Association—dedicated to cleaning up television, movies and radio—persuaded a High Court judge to allow criminal proceedings against Gay News, a newspaper for homosexuals.

The subject of her suit is a poem written by an English literature professor, James Kirkup, now a poet in residence and visiting professor at Amherst College in Massachusetts.

His poem is a fantasy in which the speaker imagines a series of homosexual acts in which Jesus is involved.

Javits Tells Yugoslavs Of American Sympathy

Special to The New York Times
 BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Dec. 10—Jacob K. Javits, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said today he believed that if Yugoslavia ever asked for American help, including arms, in maintaining its national integrity, such a request would be viewed with sympathy.

The New York Republican spoke with reporters following meetings with leaders here at which, he said, he had expressed this view. He said he had also told the Yugoslavs that he understood that "Yugoslavia can take care of itself" and had not asked for such assistance.

He said he had given his views in response to official Yugoslav questions about a statement made during the election campaign by President-elect Jimmy Carter to the effect that American troops would not be sent to protect Yugoslavia against a Soviet invasion.

His visit to Belgrade concluded a European trip that included talks with leaders in Britain, Italy, West Germany, France and Belgium.

Israelis End Detention Of Palestinian Activist

Special to The New York Times
 RAMALLAH, Israeli-occupied West Bank, Dec. 10—Israeli military officials ended today their detention of a Palestinian woman activist who had been kept under house arrest here for nearly four months.

Although a military review board had recommended that the activist, Raymond Tawil, still be detained, her release was ordered by the local military governor, Yaacov Katz.

Mrs. Tawil, an ardent supporter of the Palestine Liberation Organization, was placed under house arrest last August by military officials in command of administering West Bank territories captured by Israel during the 1967 war. At the time, the officials gave no reason for her detention, citing only security reasons.

Two Students Are Killed In Fighting In Turkey

ANKARA, Turkey, Dec. 10 (AP)—A woman student was shot dead in a new outbreak of street fighting between rival student political groups here today. Another student was found shot dead in his house.

The female student, identified as Aynur Sertbudak, was killed in front of the agricultural school of Ankara University during a clash between rightists and leftists. Two other persons were seriously injured, the police said.

CHINA ARMY CHIEFS SEEN ADDING POWER
after factional outbursts there. In both provinces the disputes have been officially linked to local supporters of Chiang Ching, the widow of Mao Tse-tung, and three other Politburo members who were arrested in early October.
The army began to increase in importance last summer, when Mr. Hua sent 150,000 troops to help with relief work in the earthquake-devastated city of Tangshan.
The army's role expanded farther when senior military officers seemed to play a pivotal part in the arrest of Miss Chiang and the three other Politburo members, who are now described as sham leftists. Until these recent events, the army had been in something of an eclipse following the death of Lin Biao, the former Defense Minister, in 1971 after an alleged attempt to overthrow Chairman Mao. But despite its public loss of prestige in those years, army officers still retained considerable power at the provincial level, making up an estimated 40 to 45 percent of the provincial party committee secretaries. This was part of the heritage of the Cultural Revolution, when Mr. Mao was forced to call in the army to help restore order.

Analysts now believe that the senior army commanders may again have assumed greater authority at the highest level of the party in Peking as Mr. Hua has had to turn to them.
The analysts note, for example, that with the deaths of top party leaders over the last two years and the purge of the four "leftists," the party Politburo has been reduced from 21 to 12 members. Moreover, of these only eight are actually active in Peking, since one, Liu Po-cheng, is believed in very poor health and three others hold provincial posts.

As a result, the analysts say, Mr. Hua and his allies among the long-time party bureaucrats and army officers who emerged victorious after Mr. Mao's death may now have formed some sort of expanded leadership group that includes several key figures outside the Politburo.
Today's report on the graduation ceremony listed, in addition to the eight regular Politburo members and one alternate member—six other senior military figures, three of whom are military officers.
Three of these six are vice chairmen of the Military Affairs Commission, the party organ that oversees the military. They are Hsu Hsiang-chien, Nieh Jung-chen and Su Yu. The others are the deputy chief of staff, Yang Cheng-wu (believed to be actually the acting chief of staff); the deputy director of the general political department of the armed forces, Liang Pi-yeh (thought to be the acting chief of the political department), and Chang Tsung-hsun, the head of the general logistics department.

ALL CHARGES WITHDRAWN IN QUEBEC ABORTION CASE
QUEBEC, Dec. 10 (UPI)—Quebec's Justice Ministry today announced withdrawal of all charges against Dr. Henry Morgentaler, the crusading abortionist, and urged the national Government to change its abortion law because it cannot be enforced.
The ministry said its withdrawal of charges did not mean it was giving approval for abortions.
"I have ordered the police to maintain their surveillance on all abortionists, especially those whose judicial situation is not the same as Dr. Morgentaler," said Justice Minister Marc-André Bedard in announcing the decision.
The 53-year old Montreal physician served 10 months of an 18-month sentence in 1975 after the Quebec Court of Appeal overturned his acquittal on a charge of performing an illegal abortion on a 26-year-old foreign student.

Matisse, Gaudi Church Works At Modern Art

By RITA REIF In their time, Henri Matisse and Antoni Gaudi proved dramatically that the architecture, stained-glass windows, pews and vestments of the Roman Catholic Church could be updated without violating ancient church traditions.

Just how they did it and with what success is gloriously evident in a small but choice design show of elements from Matisse's chapel in the south of France and from two of Gaudi's churches in and near Barcelona.

The five Matisse chasubles and a maquette for one of these have been exhibited many times—but always briefly—since the museum acquired them more than two decades ago.

Chasubles Dominate Show ... J. Stewart Johnson, the museum's new curator of design, has brought these designs from storage and paired them with a recently acquired Gaudi church bench and plaster models for a nave and a pillar of his Sagrada Familia Church in Barcelona.

Maquette More Vivid ... Matisse apparently thoroughly enjoyed the technique he had developed to devise designs for these patchworks. In his 80's and confined to bed, he worked with sheets of paper that were painted with gouache colors he had prepared himself.

The same repertory of provocative motifs in the vestments recur in Matisse's stained-glass window. But all are played against a boldly wrought starry night sky.

'Nuit de Noël' stained-glass window by Henri Matisse for Time. Provocative motifs in stained glass Motifs in the vestments recur in Matisse's stained-glass window. But all are played against a boldly wrought starry night sky.

The white plaster models of a column and a nave window are also sinuous studies of the Catalan architect's style.

The neo-Gothic designs here are reproductions of elements originally fashioned by Gaudi for the Sagrada Familia that were destroyed in 1936.

Engraving by Durer Is Stolen
From Philadelphia Art Museum

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 10 (UPI) — A 16th-century engraving by the German artist Albrecht Durer has been stolen from the Philadelphia Art Museum.
The 464-year-old engraving, Christ

Bob McAdoo at a news conference in Manhattan yesterday after he arrived to join the Knicks.

Knicks' Tickets Hotter With McAdoo in City

By SAM GOLDAPPER
Eddie Donovan paced nervously in the lobby of Madison Square Garden yesterday morning awaiting the arrival of Bob McAdoo and Tom McMillen on the 11:30 flight from Buffalo. Meanwhile, the effect of the trade that brought the pair from the Braves to the Knicks was being felt at Madison Square Garden.
The telephone operators were deluged with calls, 75 season subscriptions were sold, worth approximately $30,000 and the additional day-to-day sales brought in $25,000 more.
McAdoo, the National Basketball Association's leading scorer for the last three seasons, had brought back some of the excitement of the better nick days when good season tickets were at a premium and almost every game was sold out. The Knicks, struggling with their 11-13 won-lost record, had been playing to a lot of empty seats and about 1,500 fever-season-ticket subscribers than a year ago.
As a new Garden executive passed the line of ticket buyers in the lobby, he smiled and said, "We're going to give to sell a lot of tickets to pay for this deal."
Behind the windows, Bob Cleary, the ticket manager, said, "The selling brisk. I don't think we would be doing this well without McAdoo."

They're buying for the Christmas Day game against the Philadelphia 76ers and the Dec. 28 game against the Houston Rockets. They're also asking if McAdoo will play tomorrow [Saturday] night against the Phoenix Suns, and we're telling them as far as we know, he's not scheduled to play.
McAdoo Injured
McAdoo suffered a groin pull against Philadelphia last Wednesday in his final game as a Brave.
After an examination yesterday by a Knicks' doctor, it was determined that McAdoo would miss the next two games—against Phoenix tonight and the Spurs in San Antonio Tuesday night. The club hopes he will play Friday night when the Knicks play the Celtics in Boston.
In the Garden lobby, Joe Kudrewicz of Rutherford, N.J., said, "I am trying to get tickets for the game against the Philadelphia 76ers in March. The Knicks got the big man they needed. I don't think John Gianelli was capable of doing the job."
Louis Vazquez of New York, studying the Knicks schedule, said, "I want four tickets at $12 each for the Christmas night game against the 76ers, four at $8.50 for the Jan. 4 Golden State game, three at $8.50 for the Jan. 8 game against Phoenix and four at $8.50 for the March 8 Denver game. I was going to buy some tickets anyway, but when they got McAdoo, I decided to get more."

At the Garden switchboard, Mrs. Dorothy McMahon said, "Oh, that McAdoo, I could wring his neck. It's been just unbelievable, the calls this week. First the callers asked if he was coming, and then when he finally came, some of the callers were sweet and others nasty. They were happy to see McAdoo come, but some hated to see John Gianelli go."
Gianelli went to the Braves as part of the $2.5-million deal that brought McAdoo and McMillen to New York. With one player over the 12-man limit, the Knicks yesterday placed Mel Davis, the 6-foot-7-inch forward in his fourth pro season, on waivers. Davis was the Knicks' top draft choice in 1973 but never lived up to the reputation he had earned at St. John's.
McAdoo was in the final season of his Braves contract, but Mike Burke, the Knicks' president, who worked almost a week on the on-again-off-again deal, said, "I don't think that will be a problem. We know roughly what he'd like to have, and we think we can work it out."
Paul Snyder, the Braves' co-owner, had offered McAdoo a new $500,000 contract.

et the TV go first," a publicity man was shouting as era crews dragged cables and lights across an orange carpet toward Bob McAdoo.
The publicity man waved his arm, and a fresh batch of people crowded toward the side room yesterday in the Hall of Fame Club at Madison Square Garden. The object of their attention sat on a couch in an alcove, as quiet as a mouse in a black turtleneck sweater and black bell-bottom slacks. His folded hands, long fingers intertwined like a cord of wood, rested lightly on his knees.
"All right," the publicity man was saying, "we'll have the stills after TV. Then let the tape recorders go in for three minutes, and..."
As Marv Albert would put it, "Yes! McAdoo, the National Basketball Association's leading star the last three years at Buffalo, was a New York kid. And even before McAdoo held up his new Knicks jersey with No. 11 on it yesterday for the television camera, he had engulfed the faithful standing in line at Garden to buy tickets.
"Can you imagine that front line?" said Andrew Kaplan, Brooklyn, almost too overcome to get the words out. "I'm in the line at Garden to buy tickets with McAdoo and Spencer Ray and at forward. That's better than Philadelphia with McNis and Doctor J."
"Right," said Craig Kennedy, a college student from Manhattan. "But let me tell you, McAdoo should be the center. McAdoo and Shelton playing beside him. Clyde and Earl in backcourt."
"McAdoo's not stiff, like Gianelli," chimped in Bill Sheffey, another collegian. "He'll change the whole outlook."
The Miracle Man
So it went. Whatever the alignment, Knicks fans are excited. They read newspapers, and they're filled with those stories that begin: "Bob McAdoo faked and right, drove the middle, soared into the air and overwhelmed the four Knicks who tried to guard him tonight..."
At his news conference yesterday, the N.B.A.'s hottest hot shot added to the legend when he said, "I'm glad to be here, because I haven't been able to concentrate the last two games."
What about those 42 points and 29 rebounds he got for the Braves last Tuesday night in Buffalo? Was that the result of a lack of concentration?
"To tell you the truth," said McAdoo, his heavy-lidded eyes focused on the ceiling, "I really wasn't concentrating."
That's the kind of firepower the Knicks are adding and

A New Gunner for the Knicks that's why their fans, disgusted by the club's 11-13 won-lost record, are comparing McAdoo's arrival to the arrival of the United States Cavalry at Fort Apache. But wait. Eddie Donovan, the Knicks' general manager, warned that McAdoo and Tom McMillen, the other Big Mac in the lettuce-filled $2.5-million package, might only bring the team up "a notch or two."

And Coach Red Holzman cautioned against instant success "in a day, a week or even a month." Even Bill Madden, McAdoo's attorney, agreed that Holzman might have a "problem blending so many gunners into a single offense."
"They're short about four basketballs here," said Madden, obviously referring to the N.B.A. rule that limits a team to one basketball at any given time.
Will Frazier, Moore and Hayward feed the ball to McAdoo? As Phil Jackson put it the other day when the deal was being negotiated, "I don't know how he can help. He'll win some games on sheer shooting, but can he fit into what we're doing? You can only have so many one-on-one players. And he needs the ball."
For their part, Knick fans want to see him get the ball. So does Madden, the man who took charge of McAdoo's business affairs early in 1973 after his first agent reportedly had reduced him to the verge of bankruptcy. A $400,000 lawsuit resulting from that earlier association is pending in California. But Madden acknowledged that McAdoo, who rejected a $500,000-a-year contract renewal in Buffalo, was "not broke" now. He just doesn't throw his money around.
Country Boy in the Big City
"It's not that he's cheap," said the attorney. "He takes good care of his parents and his wife and two children. He's just not a New York-style spender. He's used to country living. He's more likely to have $7 in his pocket than $78. So friends shouldn't expect to get taken out to fancy steak houses, because he wouldn't go there himself."
Outside the Garden, after the television cameras and tape-recorders and notebooks had left, a cab driver conceded that McAdoo might help the Knicks. But he warned that the new man "better not live it up too much" with fat contracts.
"The money swell, the head swell," the caddy said.
But as John Shumate said of his friend and former Buffalo teammate, "He's what they call a workhorse producer. You can get awed just watching Bob McAdoo."
Judging by the lines at the ticket windows yesterday, Knick fans can't wait to start.

Mahre First in World Cup Giant Slalom

By BERNARD KIRSCH
Special to The New York Times
VAL D'ISERE, France, Dec. 10—Pillars are an exception, says skiing is not whole life but just a sport that is enjoyable and that some day it will bring him somewhere. Today it brought him to glory.
The young man from White Pass, Alaska, a snow-covered hamlet, became winner of the World Cup circuit for the first time, wiping out Ingemar Stenmark by more than a second in the one-hour giant slalom.
Third in the opening men's race of the cup season was an Austrian, Klaus Heidegger, with the Olympic gold medalist, Piero Gros of Italy, fourth. Another of the ski world's giants, Gustavo Thoeni, ended his race sprawled in the snow during the first heat.

Mahre is the antithesis of a Thoeni, a Gros, a Stenmark—men who live skiing and have made it their business, who cannot walk the mountain resorts of Europe without being asked for an autograph. Mahre has said it must be strange to be Stenmark or Thoeni.
Mahre's life, too, may be a bit hectic now for he has a reputation as the man who shot down Stenmark. And it wasn't even a contest. The 19-year-

Cards Regain Reitz In McGlothen Trade

By MURRAY CHASS
Special to The New York Times

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 10—If the Yankees and the Mets had followed the pattern of trading at baseball's winter meetings, George Medich, Pat Dobson and Rudy May would have returned to the Yankees and Del Unser, Wayne Garrett and Duffy Dyer would have become Mets again.
The New York teams, though, not only didn't follow the trading pattern. They also had made no deals involving major league players as the interleague trading deadline of midnight tonight approached.
The St. Louis Cardinals, on the other hand, maintained the theme of Homecoming Week when they reacquired Ken Reitz, the third baseman they shipped to San Francisco one year and two days ago for Pete Falcone, a pitcher.
To get Reitz back, the Cardinals this time sent the Giants a pitcher, Lynn McGlothen, a 26-year-old right-hander who achieved much notoriety last season when he admitted throwing a pitch at Unser purposely.
Others 'Go Home'
The trade was the third of the week that involved players returning to teams for which they previously had played. Rico Carty went back to Cleveland and George Scott and Bernie Carbo went home again to Boston.
In all, the teams made 13 deals involving 36 players this week.
Nonetheless, the trading pace during these meetings has dropped from previous years. Last year, for example, 64 players changed teams in 23 trades.
The Mets were involved in two minor transactions that brought their farm system Sheldon Mallory and Ed Kurpiel. They have done nothing big for themselves, though.

Joe McDonald, the general manager, apparently tried. Late last night he was overheard in a loud exchange with Tom Lasorda, the Los Angeles manager.
Nothing to Shout About
"Do we have a deal or don't we?" McDonald shouted at Lasorda.
Obviously, they didn't, whatever it was they were working on.
The Yankees came to the meetings seeking a shortstop and a good right-handed hitter. Gabe Paul would have gladly dealt with Texas for Toby Harrah or with Los Angeles for Bill Russell, but neither was available.
Paul did try for Bucky Dent, but the Chicago White Sox wanted too much. Frank Duffy of Cleveland and Chris Speier of San Francisco apparently didn't intrigue the Yankees.
Richie Zisk, Pittsburgh's slugging left fielder, was the kind of right-handed hitter Paul had in mind, but again he couldn't connect.
Paul originally hoped to leave Los Angeles last night, but he decided to stay until the last possible moment. "I'm going to cover the waterfront before I go," the Yankee president said.
Paul spent the day moving from meeting to meeting, team to team. Only once did his smooth schedule encounter a snag.
"I got messed up on the time this morning," he said. "My watch stopped. I was talking to a club and I thought we had all sorts of time. But they had an 11:30 appointment and they had to go. My watch said 10:25."

The Cardinals and the Giants had no trouble telling the correct time. Reitz will play third for the Cardinals again while Hector Cruz will move to right field. Reitz batted .367 and drove in 66 runs last season.
McGlothen, who won 13 games and lost 15, will join John Montefusco, Jim Barr and Ed Halicki in the Giants' starting pitching rotation. Jack Clark, a 21-year-old rookie, will get a chance to replace Reitz at third for San Francisco.
In another transaction, Cleveland made its third trade of the week, obtaining Andy Thornton, a 27-year-old taining Andy Thornton, a 27-year-old Jackie Brown, a 33-year-old pitcher.
The Indians, who tried but failed to get Scott from Milwaukee earlier in the week, needed some protection at first base because they didn't feel Boog Powell could do the job anymore. Thornton, who started last season with the Chicago Cubs, batted .194 with 11 home runs and 38 runs batted in.

Barnes Aids Pistons as Nets Lose

By AL HARVIN
Special to The New York Times

UNIONDALE, L.I., Dec. 10—"Write something good about me," said Marvin Barnes in the hotel lobby before making his first local appearance in a Detroit uniform in tonight's 108-104 Pistons victory over the New York Nets. "If you do, you'll be the first one. Everybody's been trying to make out like I was a hood."
Barnes only scored 9 points in the game, but he had a key basket and a key rebound in the final minutes that helped the Pistons stave off a last-quarter surge that almost gave the Nets the victory after a slow start.
Bob Lanier, the key to Detroit's offense who went to court recently to testify on Barnes's behalf, was the high scorer for the Pistons with 22 points. M. L. Carr scored 17 and Eric Money 16 for the Pistons.
After the Nets had caught Detroit, Chris Ford put the Pistons back up, 104-102. But Tiny Archibald missed a jumper for New York and Barnes snared the rebound with 30 seconds left. The Nets called time.
Then Barnes got his basket to put the Pistons up by 4 with 21 seconds left. A technical foul on coach Herb Brown of Detroit and another free throw allowed the Nets to close within 2 again. But Lanier blocked an attempt by Al Skinner and the Pistons won.
Barnes, on three years' probation for assaulting a Providence College teammate with a tire iron, had been in Providence earlier this week resulting from his arrest this year for carrying an unloaded gun on an airplane.
Before tonight he had played only 20 minutes all year. In five minutes of play on Wednesday night, he scored his first 2 National Basketball Association points.
Early in the game, it looked as if

Michaels 'Top' Choice For Next Coach of Jets

By GERALD ESKENAZI
Special to The New York Times

HEMPSTEAD, L.I., Dec. 10—There will be no change in the Jets' ownership or in the general manager, the beleaguered club's president, Phil Iselein, said today.
"Outside of Al Davis of the Raiders, what does top-level management do in the National Football League?" asked Iselein. "We give the wherewithal and pick the people we think can do the job to run the team."
Still, the top-level officials of the Jets never had a coach quit on them before.
"We'll pick a coach within a few weeks," said Iselein.
Intensive Search Waged
He would not blame Al Ward, the general manager, nor would he permit his partners or himself to shoulder the blame for the latest debacle.
"How could you know a man would quit?" asked Iselein, about Lou Holtz's about-face resignation yesterday, a day after Holtz said he would remain with the team.
Yet Holtz had been chosen after an intensive search in which some of football's most famous names had been approached for the job. Holtz was given a five-year deal at $80,000 a year. He lasted less than 12 months before quitting.
There has been an increasingly strong voice heard from the players, and from those who work with them and in the offices, for Walt Michaels to take over. The interim coach is Mike Holovak, who will lead the club in its season finale Sunday against the Cincinnati Bengals.

Ward interviewed his veterans today for their impressions of the coaching situation. They favored Michaels. He is the defensive coordinator, a longtime Jet who left the club for a few years when he was not picked to succeed Weeb Ewbank, who chose his son-in-law, Charley Winner.
"Walt's got as good a chance as anyone else," said Iselein.
Allen Rumors Dispersed
As usual, there were the George Allen rumors. It was reported in Washington that Iselein wined and dined a member of Allen's family last Sunday in Iselein's private box at Shea Stadium.
"Oh, that," said Iselein. "George called me and said his 80-year-old mother was coming out of a convalescent home in Albany and asked if I could take care of her at the game. I got her into the Diamond Club."
Iselein added that Allen was not available. He also dismissed a report out of Baltimore that the Colts' general manager, Joe Thomas, would come to New York.
"Joe Thomas has a contract," said Iselein. "Years ago Thomas called me when Weeb was here, and Weeb said we didn't need him. I'm doing the job myself," said Weeb.
One of the Michaels-for-coach boosters was an assistant coach, Joe Gardi. He had optimistically believed he tions of private individuals. We cannot accept the responsibility or the precedent set by this action." "E.P.A. agrees that our cars meet the federal standards when maintained to specifications," the statement continued. However, when an individual improperly adjusts an emissions control system we are not responsible for those actions. We tend to challenge this order." The agency, however, apparently has rejected this line of argument in advance. Stanley W. Legro, assistant administrator for enforcement said: "We believe the technology is available to Chrysler to instantly reduce the possibility of readjustment. This technology has been utilized by other manufacturers for several years."

P.A. ORDERS RECALL IN CHRYSLER DISPUTE

Blame for Rotten Egg Smell
Mr. Legro also said that misadjusted carburetors such as those found in the Chrysler cars were the chief cause of "the rotten egg smell often associated with catalytic converters."

"Consumers should know that this problem can generally be fixed through proper carburetor adjustment," he said. Another E.P.A. official said that "consumers shouldn't be the ones that have to worry about the ability of mechanics to maintain their cars."

Industry observers said that the question of responsibility for maintenance is likely to be a major battlefield in the war against auto emissions.

The Chrysler Corporation now has 45 days to appeal the E.P.A. order. If it does, the agency must hold a public hearing and within 60 days of the hearing either rescind the order or order Chrysler to comply.

If the company has to recall the cars, it must inform all owners of the affected models in writing to take the cars to Chrysler repair shops for adjustment. A spokesman for the agency said that owners should not take cars in until they receive the letters.

David Hawkins of the National Resources Defense Council said that he hoped owners would take their cars in anyway.

Ponchos Recalled After Fire

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (UPI)—The government announced today the recall of 16,000 cotton-fringed acrylic ponchos for a girl was burned when she leaned over a gas stove and the fringe caught fire.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission said that the multi-colored and plaid ponchos had been distributed nationwide until last month through J.C. Penney and a few other stores. They were made by Cotton City Industries Inc.

Those sold through Penney's have a label in the neck area marked JCP8203 with style No. 3050, 3051 or 3052. Ponchos sold through other stores are marked with the number 9815.

"The ponchos, suitable for girls and women, may present a hazard if the fringed edge of the solid color cotton fringe encircling the acrylic garment comes into direct contact with an open flame or high heat source," the agency said.

A spokesman said that the agency had learned of the problem after a child in Iowa, otherwise unidentified, was burned when she leaned over a gas stove and the fringe of her poncho caught fire. She suffered burns to her upper body, the agency said. No other injuries have been reported.

While most of the ponchos were sold by Penney's, "a limited number were sold at Foley's Department Store, Houston, Tex., and even smaller numbers sold to 'small retail stores,'" the announcement said.

Study Criticizes Hospital Agency

federally financed planning organization that helped draft them.

The report is to be submitted to Mayor Beame next Wednesday.

The criticism of the corporation's leadership was anticipated since the chairman of the task force, Morrell Goldberg, the executive vice president of the Brookdale Hospital Medical Center in Brooklyn, had already described the corporation's leadership as an "unmitigated disaster."

However, the actual report by the seven members of the task force fell short of Mr. Goldberg's harsh indictment, which he had given in a recent interview. Instead, it said its findings and recommendations "highlighted the existence of managerial problems of leadership and direction."

'Problems Cannot Be Ignored'

While the report said that its criticism "in no way" constituted "an attack on the concept or the viability of the Health and Hospitals Corporation," it did say that "the managerial components of the health and hospital's problems cannot be ignored."

The report did not mention or identify Dr. John L. S. Holloman Jr., the corporation's president, partly in deference to the fact that he is one of the task force's seven members.

But the report contended that any of the reforms urged by the task force "cannot be achieved without a cadre of senior policy-making officers."

The report's oblique criticism of Dr. Holloman's leadership comes at a time when some of the Mayor's senior advisers are seeking to replace him and members of the State Control Board have urged Mr. Beame to install a new managerial team at the corporation.

However, Dr. Holloman, one of the city's top appointed black officials, has vowed to resist any efforts to replace him.

Sharp Disagreements

In its report, which reportedly created sharp disagreement among the task force's seven members, the panel said that the corporation's accounting and collection procedures were outmoded and deficient and had resulted in the loss of what it estimated to be $20 million in funds owed it by Medicaid, Medicare and private insurers such as Blue Cross.

In some instances, the report said, there were "total failures" of the corporation in retrieving money due it from third-party payments. As a consequence, the report said that the corporation should delegate collections to individual hospitals and provide them with sophisticated electronic data equipment to streamline their collection and accounting procedures.

56,000-Pupil School System Shut As Toledo Voters Bar Tax Rise

Children playing outside the Glenn School, on Toledo's west side, after all schools in the Ohio city were closed last Friday

By WILLIAM K. STEVENS

TOLEDO, Ohio, Dec. 8—Life had fled the place, but life's traces remained: a red sweater, left behind by its tiny owner. A sign implored, "Come out of your shell! Read!" Untouched crayons and unopened pencil boxes. A lost cap and an unmatched glove tacked up on a bulletin board. Chairs built for small frames, empty now and piled on unused desks.

Out in the hallway of the Glenn School on Toledo's west side, the clock was stopped at 2:57. Someone pulled the plug at that moment last Friday afternoon. With that symbolic act, the Toledo school district, with 58,000 students, became what is believed to be the largest in the nation ever to shut down for lack of money—at least since the Great Depression.

City schools in some parts of the country are the victims of what appears to be a new wave of resistance to school-operating levies by taxpayers burdened by inflation and skeptical of the schools' performance. Only in Ohio and Oregon are schools closing. But in several other states where school finances are subject to voter approval, citizens have also been turning thumbs down on school budgets and tax levies.

Down in the basement of the Glenn School, a lone occupant, Oscar Ellis, the maintenance man, keeps the furnace going. Today he was also keeping watch over a small incubator full of turkey eggs when—pop!—one hatched. Ordinarily, Mr. Ellis would summon the school's kindergarten classes for a lesson in life. This time they missed it. Others are missing things, too. The fifth- and sixth-grade boys on the baseball team that Mr. Ellis coaches are literally out in the cold, with no place to play and no league to play in now that the schools are closed. "I saw two or three of them walking around out there in the snow with their chins dropped way down," Mr. Ellis said.

And most important, perhaps, the tools of literacy in the empty classrooms upstairs—where the walls bear reading-aid sentences like, "The wet pet did fret," and "The fat cat has a rat,"—are unused. For those children who had reached a critical reading stage, some teachers say, that is a great loss.

The shutdown is to last only a little while. Classes are to resume on Jan. 3, when a new fiscal year begins for Ohio's schools.

But "the little ones who were just beginning to grasp the basics will almost have to start over," said Joanne Long, president of the Glenn mothers' club, who works as an aide in the school.

An Unaccustomed Novelty And all across Toledo, mothers like Mrs. Long are having to cope with the unaccustomed novelty of having school-age children around the house in the winter. Mrs. Long has five. "They're underfoot constantly," she said. "You can't get anything done."

That, too, will last only a little while. Of far greater concern to educators here is what will happen next time. "The problem is just starting," according to Molly Drew, a teacher at the Glenn School.

If the Toledo schools cannot get any more money next year, and prospects appear bleak, they may have to close next October, thereby losing a major chunk out of the academic year.

The reason things seem so bleak, from the standpoint of those who support the schools, is that Toledoans have refused for the last eight years to vote any tax-rate increase to meet rising operating costs. This year, school officials say, the costs finally caught up with them.

In the latest attempt to pass a levy, on Nov. 2, a proposal to raise school funds by increasing the real-estate tax by $7.70 for each $1,000 of assessed valuation was defeated, 55,627 to 40,284.

Seven other Ohio school districts also are closed, or will be by the end of the year, for similar reasons. In all, about 70,000 of the state's 2.5 million students are affected. In Oregon, four districts have shut, some only briefly. Both New York and New Jersey have had record or near-record numbers of school budget defeats this year in districts where the voters have a say—and that is most districts in both states.

Voters in 58 percent of those districts in New Jersey, or 314 districts out of 590, rejected their 1976 school budgets. What will happen now is up in the air because the level of state school aid has not been settled. In addition, many of the districts have filed appeals to the State Commissioner of Education, who has the power to adjust budgets and command local districts to raise taxes.

In New York, budgets have failed so far this year in 192 of 661 districts. That is a 29 percent mortality rate, the state's highest ever. In most cases, new elections have been held and the budgets have passed. But usually the new budgets have involved cutbacks, most often in extracurricular activity.

No one has collected any precise figures on the number of budget and levy defeats nationally in 1976. But Dr. Philip Piele of the University of Oregon, an authority on the subject, said that there has been a surge in such defeats, "particularly this year." There was an earlier surge in the late 1960's and early 1970's, but Dr. Piele said the trend moderated somewhat around 1973 and 1974.

3 Factors Account for Defeats In Toledo's case, three main factors seem to have combined to cause the levy's defeat.

First, some citizens seem to have lost confidence in the schools' ability to educate. This has been true in many areas of the country since the early 1970's, with the complaints varying widely. In its current form in Toledo, the dissatisfaction has appeared often to take the form of a back-to-basics, cut-out-the-frills sentiment.

Second, there is a pervasive suspicion that the schools are wasting money, or at least that school officials cannot satisfactorily explain how the money is being spent.

This feeling was apparently aggravated by the fact that the school system opened in September a series of "skill centers" designed to teach job skills to teen-agers. Many voters apparently considered the centers a luxury. It did not help, some local observers have said, that the operation of the centers required some of the school system's black students, who make up 30 percent of total enrollment, to be bused around the city.

Indeed, while the city's black wards supported the levy, one only white ward did an upper-middle-class enclave near the University of Toledo.

Third, and probably most important in explaining why anti-school-tax sentiment has surged anew, citizens oppressed by the constantly rising cost of living feel they are already being taxed to death. The school tax is the only one to which they have a chance to say "No," and they are doing just that.

Jack Bigel Holds Many Keys To City's Mansions

By LEE DEMBART

Jack Bigel. The name comes up with increasing frequency these days as he advises most of the municipal unions, speaks for them and shuttles back and forth as their representative, now trying to solve the $1 billion problem created by the court decision that the city's debt moratorium was illegal.

"Jack is like the virgin maiden learning 50 ways to say no," says Victor Gotbaum, the union leader who is one of Mr. Bigel's closest associates.

Nonetheless, Mr. Bigel, a onetime union organizer with four decades of experience in the labor movement, and the top adviser to unions on pension funds, has become "the single most important element in the solution of New York City's problems," in the view of First Deputy Mayor John Zuccotti.

Mr. Zuccotti should know. Thirteen months ago, when Mayor Beame asked him to become First Deputy Mayor, Mr. Zuccotti wavered. He wanted to return to private law practice, and he was fearful of being ground up in the fiscal crisis, which had just forced the retirement of James A. Cavanaugh.

Undecided, Mr. Zuccotti met with Howard Rubinstein, the political and omnipresent public-relations man, and Mr. Bigel, who is usually described as a union consultant, in the latter's apartment in a midtown office building.

For two hours they talked, and finally Mr. Bigel said, "I tell you now the unions will support you. We'll work with you." That pledge helped convince Mr. Zuccotti to take the job.

Mr. Bigel, it turns out, is at once a confidant and adviser not only of the Deputy Mayor but of Governor Carey and Mayor Beame as well as such labor leaders as Mr. Gotbaum, John DeLury, Michael Maye and Barry Feinstein.

And now he has important relationships with the business community too, real-estate people like the Tishmans and the Tisches and Lewis Rudin, bankers like Pexford Tompkins and, of course, Felix G. Rohatyn, chairman of the Municipal Assistance Corporation.

In the city's present fiscal crisis the roles of the municipal employee pension funds—and of Mr. Bigel—are paramount and officials working on the latest proposal to raise $1 billion in cash over the next several months have cautioned that no plan has yet won the approval of those being asked to participate in it—chiefly the banks and the union pension funds.

To hear Mr. Bigel tell it, as he did the other day in his cluttered office at 230 West 41st Street, he is "a mere technician," the man who provides the statistics that the labor stars quote. His friends laugh at the description.

Is Mr. Bigel a power behind many thrones in New York? "That's an understatement," said Mr. Rubinstein, who is himself an

Consumer spending, reflected in retail sales, took a big jump in November and was higher in October than earlier figures indicated, the Commerce Department said. Based on a preliminary estimate, store sales in November of $55.58 billion, seasonally adjusted, were up 1.7 percent from October, a large increase for a single month, and were 10 percent over November 1975. [2:8.]

Breaking ranks again with the banking industry, the Morgan Guaranty Trust Company cut its prime lending rate from 6 1/2 percent to 6 percent. Many other big banks in the meantime—Citibank, Chase Manhattan and Bank of America—reduced prime rates to 6 1/4 percent from 6 1/2 percent. Morgan Guaranty made a similar reduction Nov. 19. [2:3.]

"A unique aberration rather than part of a pattern," was the way a report described a $2.5 million bribe promised in 1974 by the United Brands Company to the Honduras Economics Minister to obtain a reduction in banana taxes. The report found that the late Eli M. Black, head of United, personally authorized the bribe and did not disclose it to his board of directors. [2:5.]

A record wheat harvest of 2.147 billion bushels was gathered by American farmers this year, the Agriculture Department estimated in its final crop production report. Last year's wheat harvest totaled 2.135 bushels, which was also a record. American farmers last month also set a record for corn production, which was estimated at 6.06 billion bushels. [3:4-5.]

The stock market extended its strong recovery, but with a somewhat reduced momentum, following the surprise cut in the prime rate by the Morgan Guaranty Trust Company. The Dow Jones industrial average finished with a gain of 2.41 points at 973.15. [2:1-2.] Profit taking in soybeans continued following a price rally earlier in the week that brought their price to more than $7 a bushel. The March delivery on the Chicago Board of Trade closed at just $7, or down about 7 1/2 cents a bushel, being as high as $7.09. [3:3.]

UNION AIDE INDICTED

DOCKSIDE PAYOFFS

Shoemen's Official Allegedly Nearly $90,000 to Insure Cargo Unloading During Strikes

By JUDITH CUMMINGS
An official of the International Longshoremen's Association was indicted yesterday by Federal charges of accepting $90,000 in cash payments from United Brands Company when the company's cargo was tied up in longshoremen's strikes in 1968-69 and 1971.

The first count of the indictment, charging in a pattern of labor racketeering, suggested that payments were made for the unloading of United Brands' cargo during the two lengthy water-shore strikes.

Field, who is generally considered the half dozen top officers of the union, is also a member of the union's national executive committee, the president of the New York District 856, which controls dock work on the East River and on the Hudson, south of Street.

Field said the indictment followed a month-long investigation into alleged racketeering. He refused to say if it was a continuing inquiry, in other union officials or other sides.

Field, who is 57 years old, is to be indicted Dec. 16 in Federal Court in Manhattan.

State Police Looking Into the Arrest of Utica's Mayor

UTICA, N.Y., Dec. 10 (UPI)—A State Police observer was ordered today to look into the dispute between Mayor Edward Hanna and local police officials that led to the Mayor's arrest and the so-far ignored suspensions of the Police Chief and three other officers.

Following his arrest, the Mayor suspended Chief Rotundo and several other command officers but they remained on duty today on the ground that Mr. Hanna did not have the power to suspend them.

Chief Rotundo told newsmen he had sent a letter to Mr. Hanna, refusing to surrender the records without a court order. The Chief also said he and the other officers would ignore Mr. Hanna's suspension order because the Mayor was exceeding his authority.

Mr. Hanna and a locksmith were arrested last night on misdemeanor charges of criminal trespass while trying to enter the locked office of Police Chief Benny Rotundo to obtain departmental records.

Mr. Hanna said he wanted records concerning all police personnel, including their conduct and background, as well as records on pistol permits given private citizens and permits to vending-machine operators.

New Precinct Commander

Vittoria Renzullo

By MARY BREASTED
When Capt. John Waters took over command of the 13th Precinct in Manhattan a few years ago, he was faced with an immediate discipline problem. Two officers had just committed minor infractions, and he had to decide how they should be punished.

The announcement of her assignment, to the command of Manhattan's First Precinct, was made Thursday—a day she spent calling her friends to tell them the good news.

According to Captain Waters and other men who worked with Captain Renzullo in the 13th Precinct in recent years, she is extremely competent, cool-headed and intelligent.

Elizabeth Reuss-Ianni, an anthropologist who is doing a study of the police and who is a friend of Captain Renzullo's, said the officer's shyness had made her hesitant to take a command in the past.

The police commander of the Chinatown precinct was transferred to administrative duties to make way for a tougher cop, a high-ranking police official said yesterday.

While there was no expressed criticism of Captain Ferriola, a 25-year veteran who was named to head the Fifth Precinct 19 months ago, the high police official said that a transfer from precinct command to administration without a rise in rank was regarded as a downgrading.

It's Part of the Job
"I've been transferred before, it's part of the job," Captain Ferriola said in a brief interview from his new office in the Manhattan North Area on West 100th Street.

As an alternative to Social Security numbers, Judge Mishler suggested the use of surveillance cameras that could be set in motion by inspectors if there was evidence of improper voting.

PROFIT TAKING HITS PRICES OF SOYBEANS

Earlier Rally Fades, With the March Contract Off 7 1/2 Cents a Bushel — Cocoa Futures Unchanged

By ELIZABETH M. FOWLER Profit taking in soybeans continued yesterday after a price rally earlier in the week that took the beans above $7 a bushel.

Some of the selling was described as pre-hedging of futures contracts by bean users. Traders reported that the domestic market for beans continued good, as did the world market.

Cocoa futures closed about unchanged on the New York Cocoa Exchange, with the March delivery at $1.41 85/100 a pound, compared with $1.41 80/100 on Thursday.

Recent record high prices for cocoa have been based on poor crop prospects in Ghana, the world's largest producer of cocoa beans and in neighboring countries like Nigeria and the Ivory Coast.

World sugar futures also held virtually steady, with the March delivery on the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange closing at 8.39 cents a pound, down from 8.40.

On the same exchange, coffee futures for December delivery matched the earlier record this week of $2 a pound and closed at that price, up $2 for the day.

Officials of Seagram Appeal 9-Day Suspension of License

Officials of Joseph R. Seagram & Son Inc., the nation's largest distiller, appeared yesterday before the director of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms to appeal a nine-day suspension of the company's Federal operating license.

Seagram, which has been accused of offering illegal trips to liquor wholesalers as inducements to buy Seagram products, waived its right to present oral arguments. Lawyers for the company asked Rex Davis, the bureau's director, to make a decision on the basis of previously submitted written documents.

U.S. Estimate Puts Wheat Crop At Record 2.147 Billion Bushels

By WILLIAM ROBBINS Special to The New York Times

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 — Wheat growers have produced a record harvest of 2.147 billion bushels this year, the Agriculture Department estimated today in its final production report on the crop.

This compared with last year's record of 2.135 billion bushels. Thus, according to the estimate, United States farmers have set records this year for the nation's two major grains.

Other crop estimates include the following: Fall potatoes—302.8 million hundredweight, a record, compared with last year's 288.7 million.

Rice—117 million hundredweight, compared with last year's 128 million. Oats—362 million bushels, compared with 357.6 million last year.

Barley—377.3 million bushels, compared with 383.9 million last year. Rye—16.7 million bushels compared with 17.9 million last year.

Today's report also said that the winter wheat crop planted this fall for next year's harvest was in "fair to good" condition although "germination and stands suffered from subnormal temperatures and low soil moisture in many producing areas."

Relive the American Revolution on the sidewalks of New York.

"DAYS OF LIBERTY"

The time is 1776. A nation is about to be born. In this animated Bicentennial Special you and your family will relive these turbulent days. Not as mere bystanders but through the eyes of a fictional 8 year old and his family caught up in the middle of exciting historical events.

Tonight at 8 P.M. 7

"Days of Liberty" will be presented by your local family of Burger King Restaurants and by Beechnut Baby Foods.

Another opening. Another show.

On Monday morning, December 13th, Dry Dock Country arrives at 85th Street and Lexington Avenue.

Our wonderful Dry Dock Country just keeps on growing.

In fact and in spirit.

At 8:30 a.m. on December 13th, the curtain goes up and the doors open at our new office at 85th Street and Lexington.

To help celebrate the occasion and encourage thrifty New Yorkers to open a savings account with the Dry Dock, we will be giving favors to everyone and valuable gifts to those who open an account of $300 or more. The celebration will continue through January 11th.

In White Plains and Katonah, too.

At the same time, we are opening new Westchester offices in White Plains at Mamaroneck and Martine and in Katonah at the station. Same great rates, same valuable gifts, same special favors. Make a note on your calendar now and be sure to come. That's Monday, December 13th.
